"Improving youth volunteering through the structured dialogue"

Improving Youth Volunteering through the Structured Dialogue is an initiative of Gantalcalá (Spain) together with: Dobrovolnické Centrum (Czech Rep.); ENL (Estonia); Evosmos Municipality (Greece); Naples Municipality (Italy); SOS Malta (Malta); Agenda 21 (Romania); Linköping Municipality (Sweden) and Black Boys Can (UK) which pretends to increase and improve the EU youth volunteering activities, to contribute with the local communities' development, through the exchange of good practices and the structured dialogue between young people and those responsible of the decision-making. The Project, that is divided in different phases and activities, lasts from 1st May 2011 until 31st January 2012.

An on-line consultation process on the Renewed framework for European cooperation in the youth field, concretely on priorities such as Youth employment and Volunteering, was addressed to the Young people of each organization's community.

In order to share and learn from the experiences, young people from each country were asked to record short videos on volunteering activities that were developed in their communities and on local problems that could be solved by a volunteer activity.

The European seminar that took place in Sevilla, Spain, from 3rd to 8th October, put together, on the one hand, 36 young people and, on the other, 8 responsible of the decision-making in the Youth field, coming from 9 different countries, in order to share good practices and establish a Structured dialogue, making use of methodologies based on the Non Formal learning principles.

The web page <http://all-in-vol.eu> has been created for the project "Improving Youth Volunteering through the Structured Dialogue", to be used as a common platform for the young people and organizations of the different countries. In this web you may find all the materials that have been used during the project, that could be useful for youngsters and organizations from all around Europe.
